

It's More Than Just a Light Fixture

Lighting isn't just a necessity, it's an opportunity – your chance to highlight and enhance a room's design to make your space not only more functional, but more cohesive, expressive, and distinctive.

The sculptural qualities of a chandelier, pendant, sconce or lamp can be a game-changing element in space – similar in impact to an investment in art. Lyrical forms and finishes, both complex and simple, can provide intrigue. Indeed, lighting can be the jewelry that brings inspiration to a space just as a tasteful necklace or watch completes an outfit.

Remember, too, that fabulous lighting can be found both new and antique. Options range from metal – cast and hand-wrought, available in a dizzying array of finishes. Glass and crystal take shape in mouth-blown, cast and baked fixtures. Carved wood can be finished in paint or metal. Ceramic and porcelain fixtures gleam even when turned off. And increasingly, fibers like rope and string, and even paper, are used to ingenious effect.

Consider lighting in all its dimensions – whether simple and practical or complex and artful. A design professional can guide your exploration, help you set a budget, and illuminate your full spectrum of options for distinctive lighting fixtures.
